Queer Question In Common Pleas Court.

For Insurance Alleged to be Due

On Goods That Were Damaged by Fire.

Street Damage Case Awards.

A case ontrial in Common Pleas court Tuesday brought out a lengthy discussion on the subject of "Stand ard time." The plaintiff of the case in question, is N. Meier and the York, are defendants. The plaintiff May be Chosen to Succeed seeks to recover $450 alleged to be due for insurance upon fixtures and household goods destroyed by fire. The fire occurred at about 11:30 o'clock a.m., standard time, April 13, 1897. The policy was to have gone into effect at noon the same day. The Insurance company claim that the policy was not operative until after the fire occurred.

In the case of Mary C. Shaffer vs. A. C. and F. H. McKnight, the de- Hays. fendants have filed an answer. The case involves a promissory note alleged to have been given in part payment for a stock of groceries. The answer alleges that the stock was not represented.

Damages Awarded The jurors in the case of the City of Akron vs. Alex C. Webber et al have returned their verdict. The case has to do with property holders on Campbell st. who claimed damages on account of the improvement of that street. Gustave Sauvain was allowed damages to the amount of $150. No damages were awarded other defendants. The jurors were John Souers, Henry Musser, H. J.

A DANGEROUS TRADE.

PERILS THAT BESET THE MAKING OF NITROGLYCERIN.

Methods Taed In the Manufacture of This Dangerous Explosive - The Care That Has to Be Exercised In Nitroglycerin and its peculiarities are little known, even in localities where it is made. People generally give it a wide berth, and even a less number know how it is manufactured. Probably in no place in the United States is there such a great amount of the explosive used as in the Indiana oilfields. Indiana has four nitroglycerin factories, and they are seldom visited by curious people.

The explosive is made from a composition of acids and glycerin. It is generally pale yellow in color, and quite coloriess when pure. It is odoriess, and has a sweet, pungent, aromatic flavor. If touched by one's tongue, or even brought into contact with the skin, it will produce a severe headache. A large tank, called an agitator, is where the fluid is mixed, and the mixture is composed of equal parts of nitric and sulphuric acids. Inside the tank are several paddles, like those of a churn, and it is here that the real danger in the manufacture exists. The paddles are put in operation and a steady stream of sweet glycerin is turned into a vat until 250 pounds are thoroughly mixed with the 1,500 pounds of acid. The chemicals coming in contact produce an intense heat, and in order to obviate the danger cold water is run through pipes encircling and running through the vat. At 85 degrees F. a red vapor, almost like fire, arises. If cutting off the supply of glycerin in the agitator does not lower the temperature, it is time to say farewell. Before 90 degrees are reached nothing but atoms of the structure and its contents

In its manufacture water is used to flood the workroom, since a drop falling on the floor might lead to an explosion. Not a nail is to be found in the floor of the factory, and the visitor is cautioned not to drag his feet. Those who make the dangerous fluid say that a far will not cause an explosion; that friction and fire are the only agencies by which it can be discharged. One may pour a barrel of nitroglycerin from a high building to a cement walk below and it will not explode, but a small quantity of it dropped from the same height in a can will blow the building down. A sharp concussion instantly touches it off. Factories become useless after a few years' operation and have to be destroyed. The timber becomes saturated with nitroglycerin and an explosion is imminent

The average production of nitroglycerin from 1,500 pounds of acid and 250 coal office at 625 East Mill st., (old pounds of glycerin is about 150 quarts. About 160 quarts constitute an average shot for an Indiana oil well. While the trade of all his friends and magazine explosions are not rare, the former patrons. Estimates on all real cause of the blowing up never becomes known. Those who are close enough to see the cause always go up for a shooter or nitroglycerin maker to remain in the business does not exceed five years. Death is instant, and no one has ever recovered from a nitroglycerin accident. Bodies are torn to atoms no larger than bits of sausage. The wages of employees of the factories range from $125 to $150 a month. Colonel William A. Myers of Bolivar, N. Y., was the man who made and exploded the first pound of nitroglycerin in an oil well. He built the first factory in the United States near Titusrille, Pa., in 1868. Up to that time powder had been used to torpedo oil vells. It was then that an explosive that could be discharged under water was found in nitroglycerin. Colone Myers' father was a Philadelphia chemist and taught his son how to The first well torpedoed was on Colo nel Mills' lease, near Titusville, and the charge consisted of only two pounds. Oil was worth $9 a barrel then, and a torpedo that would double the production of a well was worth almost what the maker chose to ask for it. Colonel Myers built 12 different factories in different parts of the oil regions from 1868 to 1885, when he retired from the business. Only one of the original factories stands intact today. Myers made several fortunes and spent his money like a prince, but, fortunately for him he still has a snug sum laid by.

Well shooters spin great yarns of their experiences, and the stories are of the hair raising order. Well shooters generally are fatalists to a considerable degree in their belief, and it is probably one reason why they do not fear the fluid. They state that when was in Tallmadge Tuesday where he line of Ladies', Men's, Boys' and went to secure additional informations. Shoes, in the very latest The smallest drop can be placed on an anvil and struck by the heaviest sledge hammer, and the hammer will bound back over the shoulder of the striker, no matter how much he may try to hold it. Some claim that it will tear the arm off, but this is exaggeration. Transporting the explosive from a magazine to a well is not as dangerous as timid people think, according to the shooters. It is transported in square cans such as are used for varnish. In preparing for shooting a well, a long tin shell is suspended in the tub ing, and the shooter pours the fluid in as if it was water. It is not un usual for 200 quarts to be in a well shooter's wagon on one trip. A slight leak in a can may be touched off by friction and explode the entire load. If it should explode in the center of a town, every building would be reduced instantly to debris.-Indianapolis Jour-

Anywhere but on this tangent there would have been a collision and somebody killed. We'd better move ahead slowly to the next side track. We can't tell just how near that train may be, and we will wait for it to pass us there." They reached the side track in safety, and, drawing in on it, awaited the coming of the other train. Half an hour passed, and the engineer was fuming, wondering how much longer he was to be delayed, when the conductor called him to main line.

"I was especially struck with the importance of clothing some time ago," continued the official, "when the assistant secretary was absent and it was my duty to stave all the callers off the secretary. I do that often, but when the assistant secretaries are here they help a great deal. "Well, I noticed on the occasion referred to that I had no trouble in keeping people away when I wore my Prince Albert and looked like the real thing. When I told them that the secretary was too busy to see callers, the thought I owned the whole place and walked away without remonstrance or without saying that their business was very important and they were sure they would be seen if I would just take their names to the secretary. "When I wore an average looking business suit, which might look just a little bit shabby, the callers didn't pa much attention to what I said. It was more difficult than you can imagine to get them to go away. They would find neer had joined him. "Seems to have all kinds of excuses to remain and to get me to present their names to the secretary. The difference was so appreciable as to be noticed by others in the room.
